

UN Youth Volunteer Programme for Korean nationals

The UN Youth Volunteer Programme for Korean nationals is financed by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Korea and implemented by the United Nations Volunteers (UNV) programme. This initiative provides university graduates with the opportunity to offer their services to developing countries for a 12- to 18-month period, and to impact on development results on the ground. Participants gain new skills and grow at the professional and personal level; they strengthen their professional expertise, broaden peer networks and gain international exposure and experience within the United Nations system.
